

 The Charleston Courier has news by telegraph, to the effect that about twenty slaves made their escape to parts unknown, from the vicinity of Baltimore, on the 6th inst. The Courier's correspondent characterizes it as a regular stampede, but gives no particulars of the manner in which they effected their escape. These stampedes are becoming every day occurrences.