

we have been very anxious to know, upon what authority our Missouri neighbors charge that slave stampedes originate in Quincy. We have called for the evidence and called in vain. "Dr. Patton of the Quincy Ferry" throws a little light on the subject. He says that the reason why some of the Missourians suspected Mr. Harper of being an "underground railroad man" was the statement of a slave to that effect.— Such, probably is the only evidence they get against the citizens of Quincy—and that's the reason why they are ashamed to furnish the grounds of their suspicion. Now as they set onfoot and carried out a plan to detect Mr. Harper, and found that the "nigger" on whose authority they suspected him, lied, isn't it barely possible Dr. that the "niggers" who have been telling those stories about Quincy folks may have lied too.— Was it the same "nigger" or another "nigger?" Lets have the witness. We want to cross-examine him, Bring on your "nigger!"
